F. D. PUSHES TAX ON RICH

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

I HAVE before me a questionnaire from the State Department of Public Welfare covering "the laws granting aid to aged persons in Arkansas, Act 322 of 1935." Some highlights on the Arkansas pension law follow:

Sales Tax Will Give Two Months More of School

Commissioner Phipps Pleads Against Repeal of Hall Levy

AIDS RURAL SCHOOL

Attorney General Rules as to Tax Application Next Monday

LITTLE ROCK—W. E. Phipps, state commissioner of education, commenting on proposals that a special session of the legislature be called to repeal the sales tax law, said Tuesday repeal of the law would cripple the public school system, unless needed revenue should be raised by some substitute plan.

He said the State Board of Education has estimated that revenue from the sales tax will extend terms of rural schools an average of two months next year.

The law, which will become operative Monday unless the Supreme Court grants a rehearing, provides that 65 per cent of the revenue from the tax shall go to the common school funds to be apportioned on the basis of school population, and that 35 per cent shall go to the general revenue fund for various appropriations by the legislature.

"If the sales tax law should be repealed, the schools would be in the same position this fall that they were during the past school year, with many schools unable to open and others remaining open only because of federal aid," Mr. Phipps said. He recalled that federal aid was continued through the 1934-35 term only because the sales tax act was passed to provide additional school revenue for succeeding school years.

Not Exempt
As Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman proceeded with plans to begin collecting the tax Monday, he was advised by Attorney General Carl E. Bailey that purchases by the state, counties and cities are not exempt from the tax.

The opinion, written by Assistant Attorney General Thomas Fitzhugh, said Section 5 of Article 16 of the state constitution, exempting public property from taxes, does not apply to the sales tax and that the tax must be paid by the state, state agencies, educational, charitable, and all political subdivisions.

The opinion pointed out that Section 16 of the sales tax act provides that the tax may be deducted from sales of foodstuffs to governmental agencies for free distribution to the poor and needy, to public penal and eleemosynary institutions, and to hospitals and sanatoria operated solely for the treatment and care of the sick and injured. Mr. Fitzhugh said this provision fortifies the conclusion that the other institutions of the state, county and city are not exempt.

To Federal Agencies
The ruling held that no sales tax could be collected on sales made directly to federal agencies.

"It should be borne in mind, however, that where the federal government is furnishing money to a state agency, either through a loan or a grant, and the state agency is in fact not the agent of the federal government but disburses the money only

Superintendent's Son, in Crowd of Spectators, Fatally Hurt

Scores Had Gathered to See Dynamite Loosen Limestone at Plant

EL PASO, TEXAS—(AP)—The superintendent's son and an estimated 10 to 15 workers were killed when buried under a shower of rock loosened by an explosion at the Rio Grande quarry of the Southwest Portland Cement company Wednesday.

Stephen Sparks, 17, the superintendent's son, was among the scores of spectators gathered to watch the dynamiting loosen up the limestone rock.

Red River Drops Foot Below Peak

Water Withdrawing From Flooded Land—Dyke Army Is Cut Down

The muddy waters of Red river were receding Wednesday, ending the worst flood threat in the Fulton area since the spring of 1927.

From a peak of 34.8 feet, the river had fallen to a stage of 33.5 Wednesday, recorded at 6 a. m. The decline was nearly a foot since Monday.

Water was slowly moving away from rich farmland, inundated for more than a week where there was no levee protection.

The Hope office of the FERA Wednesday cut the army of relief workers from nearly 1,000 to about 250. Only Hempstead county men were being employed on the weakest portions of the dikes.

Arkansas Rivers Falling
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Weather Bureau reported Wednesday the Arkansas river is falling at all points, with a rapid recession forecast at Dardanelle and above.

Fort Smith showed a fall of 3.9 feet for the 24-hour period.

Meanwhile the flood waters menaced Gillett, in southern Arkansas, with the overflow threatening the business district.

The highwater marks of 1916 were touched.

At Paragould 500 men worked in three shifts, fighting to save the east levee of the St. Francis river east of there. The river is reported at a standstill, but dangerously near the top of the levee.

The raising of this money, therefore, becomes one of the prime political issues before our state.

In a commonwealth where so many free-thinking citizens loudly proclaim their belief in wealth-sharing programs this should not be a difficult task—and yet it will be difficult.

The same people who want wealth to be shared do not ordinarily want taxes to be raised.

But they are going to be, if we are to obtain old-age pensions—and we are going to do that.

4 Millions Left by Ex-Sen. Cutting

New Mexico Liberal Leaves $50,000 to Progressive Friend, Lafollette

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An estate valued at almost $1,000,000 was left by Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, killed in an airplane crash in Missouri last month.

His will, filed Tuesday left individual bequests totaling $1,100,000. Mrs. Justine B. Ward and Mrs. Olivia James, sisters, and Iris Origo, a niece, will inherit the bulk of the estate.

Jesus M. Baca of Santa Fe, N. M., was bequeathed $150,000, in addition to Senator Cutting's newspaper, the Santa Fe New Mexican. Herman S. Baca and Bryan O'Dunn of New Mexico were left $100,000 each.

To his close friend and senate colleague, Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, Cutting left $50,000, and to the latter's brother, Philip La Follette, governor of Wisconsin, $25,000.

Spring Hill Cripple Walks, Thanks to F.D. Birthday Ball

Lee Butler, 20, Reaps Reward of Hempstead County's Participation in Roosevelt Benefit Ball

Lee Butler, 20-year-old Spring Hill youth, is able to walk again. Stricken by infantile paralysis early in childhood, Butler was unable to walk for many years.

Sorrow had lined his features. He faced a terrible barrier in life. Wednesday he was walking. He was cheerful facing a new outlook upon life—thanks to funds raised through President Roosevelt's birthday ball held in Hope early this year.

Mrs. C. W. Lowthorp was chairman of the birthday ball. A total of $137.25 was raised, 70 per cent of which stayed in Hempstead county.

The ball was held in January. In March an organization was completed to investigate victims of paralysis. Mrs. Lowthorp was named chairman. She appointed Mrs. Roy Anderson, Miss Flora Cotton and Mrs. Carter Johnson as an investigating committee.

Four requests from paralysis victims had already reached the committee.

Plans are now being made to send Butler to school.

Benefit Show at Saenger Thursday

"The World's All Right" Will Be Repeated Friday Night

"The World's All Right," with a cast of 150 local persons, is ready for presentation on the Saenger theater stage Thursday and Friday nights, Miss Julia Gates, director, announced Wednesday.

The scene of the entire show is laid in a radio broadcasting room. It is unique because the audience is given a backstage view of what goes on as the program is put over the air.

When talent fails to show up and things go wrong, the radio announcer, Lawrence Martin, is often called upon to fill in and give character impersonations of himself.

Martin and his sweetheart, Jane Rogers, played by Mrs. George Ware, are trying to keep the station from going broke. Bill collectors haunt them. Talent walks over them. But they are determined to keep the station in operation which promises to bring a night of entertainment to those who witness the show.

"The World's All Right" is sponsored by the Young Business Men's association of Hope.

Believed Designed for Export, to Meet Cheap New Japanese Auto

NEW YORK—(AP)—The New York World-Telegram said officials of the Ford Motor company plant at Edgewater, N. J., refused to discuss reports of experiments now conducted at the plant on a four-cylinder automobile with a Diesel motor, to sell for approximately $300.

"It was reported," the World-Telegram says, "that the car is being developed to meet foreign competition of a new Japanese car scheduled to be marketed next January."

Jap Patrol Engaged by Army of Chinese

TOKYO, Japan—(AP)—A Manchoukuo frontier patrol of eight men and 700 Chinese soldier along the Sanchow Jehol-Chahar frontier Wednesday, advised the Manchoukuo war office reported.

Long again assailed the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which Saturday paid employees of 11 city departments, employees of which had gone payless since June 6, as a relief project.

He read news dispatches telling of the financial difficulties of the city of New Orleans "because of a political battle" between Long and Mayor Walmsley.

"In other words," Long said, "they spend all their money fighting me and now can't pay their garbage collectors."

Duke Ellington, one of the most popular negro orchestras in America, comes to Hope July 4 to play for a negro dance at Yerger High School auditorium.

About two weeks ago Ruth Ellington, sister of the orchestra leader, played for an Elks dance in Hope.

Rome's Farewell to Eden Is Even Cooler Than His Reception

ROME, Italy—(AP)—Official sources indicated Wednesday as Captain Anthony Eden departed for London that the British diplomat's conversations with Premier Mussolini had not in the slightest respect changed the premier's determination to make a "complete solution" of the Italo-Ethiopian problem.

Captain Eden's farewell was cooler than the cool welcome he received on his arrival.

Tourist Kills Cow and Wrecks Truck

Dallas Motorist Hits Livestock on No. 67 Paving Near Fulton

Damage of more than $100 to a truck, and a dead cow, was the result of a wreck on the paved Fulton road two miles east of Fulton late Monday night.

The owner of the truck was not identified. He was a Dallas tourist en route toward Hope. After his truck was repaired at a local filling station, he departed. Filling station operators did not obtain his name.

The name of the owner of the cow could not be learned. The tourist told filling station attendants he was driving at a moderate rate of speed when the cow suddenly crossed the road. The crash resulted, leaving a dead cow and a badly damaged truck.

Garbage Strike in New Orleans Fails

Half of Strikers Agree to "Stick by People of the City"

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—The second walkout of New Orleans garbage collectors within less than a week appeared broken Tuesday almost as quickly as it started.

More than half the 240 wagon drivers and helpers returned to their jobs in response to pleas by city officials to "stick by the people of New Orleans."

Although more than 100 drivers and helpers were idle for the most part, garbage was collected and officials declared the "city was cleaned up as usual by nightfall."

Department officials predicted that refusal of more than 100 drivers and helpers to join their comrades in striking for full payment of back salaries, a six-day work week and time and a half for holidays, would result in collapse of the strike.

Senator Huey P. Long, who Monday was charged by his arch political foe, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, with "inspiring" the strike, told the senate in Washington that he was "washing his hands" of any part of the garbage row.

Long again assailed the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which Saturday paid employees of 11 city departments, employees of which had gone payless since June 6, as a relief project.

He read news dispatches telling of the financial difficulties of the city of New Orleans "because of a political battle" between Long and Mayor Walmsley.

"In other words," Long said, "they spend all their money fighting me and now can't pay their garbage collectors."

Johnson Assumes Charge N. Y. Work

Late NRA Chief Takes Over Badly Bungled Metropolitan Task

NEW YORK—(AP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson Tuesday night stepped into one of the biggest jobs of his public career—the administration of Federal Work-Relief in New York city.

The former administrator of NRA was appointed in Washington as the city's Works Progress administrator. The announcement was made by Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of the $4,000,000 federal work fund.

Johnson's appointment was due to Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia. For several weeks LaGuardia had been urging Johnson to accept the position.

Johnson stipulated that he should receive only per diem expenses of $25 a day. He will work only four days a week, with the understanding the job ends October 1 unless the president and himself consider his continuance necessary.

He'd Deport

Six million aliens would be deported, with the view to solving America's job problem, under the bill drafted by Rep. Martin Dies (Dem., Tex.), above, who declares he has support of 165 organizations representing 5,000,000 people. Dies asserts European countries have taken similar action to cut unemployment.

Administration Is Set Up for Youth

1/2 Million Will Be Aided in Schooling and Obtaining of Jobs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt established Wednesday a "National Youth Administration" to meet what he called a great national need by offering unemployed youth "their chance in school, their turn as apprentices, and their opportunity for jobs."

The new agency will be under the work relief program.

The president set aside 50 million dollars to be used in providing work for apprentices in private industry, in offering high school and college training to those between the ages of 16 and 25, and in giving work relief to youths.

Roosevelt said the program would aid approximately 500,000 young men and girls.

But Program May Be Divorced From "Nuisance" Levies

Farm Refinancing Measure Regarded Certain to Pass Lower House

LABOR BILL IS NEAR

President Outlines His Views at Press Conference Wednesday

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt said Wednesday he wants his wealth-tax program enacted at this session of congress but not necessarily as part of the emergency nuisance tax bill due to pass by Saturday.

As he spoke at his press conference, house ways and means committee Democrats served notice on senate leaders that they intended to insist upon originating the new tax bill, to carry out the president's wider wealth distribution.

Farm Refinance Bill Up

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A showdown drew near in the house Wednesday on the 3-billion-dollar Frazier-Lemke bill to refinance farm mortgages through currency inflation.

At least one Democratic leader openly conceded the administration chiefly had little chance of stopping passage.

Washington—(AP)—The long-fought Wagner-Connelly labor disputes bill cleared final congressional approval Tuesday with an agreement by house and senate conferees.

The conference agreement probably will be called up in the senate Wednesday and sent to the house for final action before nightfall.

Roosevelt's approval is assured.

The conferees dropped out of the bill a house amendment limiting units for collective bargaining purposes to employees of a single employer. Another house amendment permitting the proposed labor relations board to define the unit was retained.

The conferees eliminated a house amendment that nothing in the bill "shall bridge the freedom of speech or of the press, as guaranteed in the First Amendment to the Constitution."

Senate conferees contended the latter was unnecessary.

As approved the bill would define five labor practices as "unfair." These are: To interfere with, restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of collective bargaining rights; to dominate or interfere with the formation of a labor organization or contribute to its support; to discriminate against union members; to discharge or discriminate against an employee because he filed charges under the bill; to refuse to bargain collectively with representatives of employees.

The bill provides for "majority rule" in the selection of employee representatives for collective bargaining.

Wealth Tax Advances

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Despite threats of organized opposition, President Roosevelt's proposal for high taxes on great fortunes passed its first congressional test Tuesday night with a decision by the senate finance committee to proceed at once with the briefest possible open hearings.

Seeking enactment by Saturday night, Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, said the procedure to be followed may bring about the unusual situation of having a portion of the program debated on the senate floor while other provisions still are in his committee.

The program, estimated by Harrison to yield the Treasury $340,000,000 annually through new taxes on incomes of more than $1,000,000 inheritances of more than $500,000 and increased rates on corporation income, is to be attached to the pending $500,000 nuisance tax resolution.

Unless that resolution is adopted by Saturday night the nuisance levies

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Cotton opened lower Wednesday with active months None to three points below the previous limited demand.

July shared in the lower prices Wednesday, closing three points to 11.46, while October at 11.77, December at 11.18 and January at 11.20 were two to three points lower.

Better weather and uncertainty over the tax program of the president were said to be largely responsible for the bearish sentiment.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet, 2 to 4 points decline under liquidation, favorable weather conditions, and lower Liverpool cables, July 11.50, October 11.19, December 11.21, January 11.23, March 11.25, May 11.31.

Body Has Its Limits in High Speed Travel

The craze for speed and more speed gives rise to the question of how much of it living tissues can stand, without serious or fatal results.

Human hands guide automobiles moving over Daytona Beach sand at more than 200 miles an hour; airplanes that have attained speeds of 400 to 500 miles an hour; and new types of locomotives that are setting records in cross-country runs.

Moreover, we read constantly of speculation about development of rocket types of vehicles which will attain unheard-of speeds, such as 1000 miles an hour.

What is the limit which a human being can stand?

Col. H. V. Wurdemann of the United States Army Medical Corps and Major Simpson of the Air Corps point out that the extreme speed that can be reached by airplanes at sea level will probably be 600 miles an hour.

The high driving sound of an airplane is said to be due to the contact with the air of the ends of the propellers, which travel at the rate of 1250 to 1500 miles an hour. Once a tremendous speed is attained, the impact on the tissues of the human body would be similar to this impact.

Living tissues cannot stand this strain and it seems doubtful that human beings can safely stand a speed of 600 miles an hour, and certainly not of 1000 miles an hour.

Colonel Wurdemann feels that some of the fatal accidents that have occurred have been due to changes in the blood supply of the brain, associated with the pressure on the body involved in sudden banking. Even a momentary loss of consciousness might be sufficient to cause disaster to an airplane.

Medical authorities associated with the flying corps are convinced that speeds of 500 to 1000 miles an hour may be mechanically possible in the future, but they are equally convinced that it is very doubtful whether a human being will be able to stand such speed.

This kind of speed straight ahead causes less effect than turning at the same clip. Colonel Bauer of the United States Army Aviation Corps says that it is impossible for a human being to stand a speed of much more than 300 miles an hour on sharp turns.

Besides these theoretical considerations there are the statements of competent flyers who have reported that, in making rapid turns, rapid descents, and rapid acceleration in their flights, they suffer in their bodies and in their senses, and at times lose consciousness when submitted to these conditions.

Moreover, there seems to be good evidence that the internal organs have been dislocated from their positions in some cases. A few pilots have been found incapacitated from hemorrhages into the brain and abdomen, and hemorrhages into the back of the eye, in connection with attaining terrific speeds in recent or in making sudden turns.

America No Bargain to This Immigrant—Hedwig Tells How Peasant Girl Is Deceived

The story of the immigrant who comes to the rich, free United States from poor, restricted old Europe is one of our favored American tales. Vance Randolph tells it again in his new novel, "Hedwig," and gives it a sardonic new twist.

Hedwig is a Russian-German girl whose family brings her to the United States some time before the war. She doesn't like the change, and she finds her rosy pictures of America aren't true to life.

Settling in Oklahoma and then moving to Arkansas, her people find poverty instead of riches. Free America becomes a place of restrictions and repressions. The old easy graces of peasant life in Europe are lacking; the Americans seem to the immigrants to be a queer and unpredictable people who are always, privately, to be looked down on and scorned.

Hedwig herself has a difficult time

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Brooding Over Tragedy Is Difficult to Halt

"One day we saw another car hit a dog," the lady told me. "Our little girl screamed, hid her face and got sick. It has since preyed on her mind. She has been so nervous when we go for a ride she won't even look out at the road."

Somewhat hardened to such sights ourselves, we are likely to think that children should not take matters so much to heart, either; and the way for this child's parents to look at it would be to let them take its course. After a while she will become inured to such unfortunate sights. In most cases, this is about all we can do, unless we build a high fence around the house and tell the children to stay inside.

But there are some children, boys too, who brood beyond a normal period after such a mental shock. Dunsany related just such a case in his story, "The Prayer Wheel," in which a man, once having seen a mangled rat, could not get it out of his mind. He traveled the world over hunting charms to rid him of the horrible apparition that pursued him even in his sleep. He found a "prayer wheel" that seemed to dispel the specter as long as it whirled. When it stopped, back came the rat.

Pet Won't Rout Horror

As a matter of truth, many of us, if not all, have prayer wheels. Some hocus-pocus or other gets the obsession out of our minds for the minute. And, truthfully, some of our pet horrors would sound so foolish to others we shudder to tell what they are. Through them sometime or other we have suffered shock, whether we remember the exact occasion or not.

However, the child will forget the accident in time, very likely, and not be so overcome if it happens again. Her mother, worried because it hasn't been forgotten yet, thought that if they bought a dog, it might help.

I don't think so, not just now. She would add two and two and worry more about the new pet than she would get comfort. It would be better not to insist that she go for rides. She lives the incident all over again every time she goes out.

Needs Dominating Interest

A psychiatrist might suggest taking her back to the scene of the catastrophe and having her see an identical dog playing around happily. Thus are impressions replaced. But the child isn't that badly affected, and it seems unnecessary. I believe if she could be given some new and very vital interest, something that so takes up her thoughts and time, that she will be planning for it when she goes to sleep each night, she'll forget the other—forget it emotionally. I mean, "Just what this is," I told her mother, "depends on your knowledge of her disposition, her likes and ambitions. After a while get her a dog. And after a while, too, she will be asking for rides. Let her talk to you about the other dog. Don't hush her up. She will get it out of her system that way. Don't remind her of it, however."

Long hair can be worn unwaved, too. You can sleek it back, rolling the long ends into a rather flat bun high on the back of the head, or, if you like, part it in the center from forehead to nape of the neck, arranging two ellipses, one over each ear. Of course, in spite of the fact that you have planned a plain coiffure that you can arrange yourself, you ought to try to keep your hair from getting wet when you swim. Bathing caps alone certainly won't keep out water, but a good cap, plus a band of chamomile, often will. Pile your hair into a topknot, then wrap the strip of chamomile around your head, pinning it securely at the back. Put a tight cap on over it.

water swim, dry it in a few minutes and arrange it herself, is going to have healthier hair than one who has to neglect the rinses for fear of ruining a wave.

If your features are regular and small enough to stand it, get your locks cut very short, have a ringlet end permanent and wear small curls all over your head. While drying your hair in the sunshine, set the short ends in loose ringlets, or, if you are quite young, run your fingers through the strands during the drying process and forget about curls.

An even simpler arrangement—this, too, is best for regular features and a not-too-long face—makes use of straight, bobbed hair. Have your barber leave the top and the part that grows back from the forehead quite long, cutting the rest (over ears) across the back of the neck) very short. Comb the front section straight backward.

Payrolls Decline for Past Month

Letup Reported for Industry in Federal Reserve Report

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A slight decline in industrial production, factory employment and pay rolls during May was reported Monday by the Federal Reserve Board.

The volume of industrial production, measured by the board's seasonally adjusted index, dropped from April's peak of 100 to 98.25, or a decline of .85 per cent in May, making the fourth consecutive month of gradual decline from the recent high level of 90 established in January.

The board said factory employment and pay rolls declined between the middle of April and the middle of May, adding:

"Decreases in employment were reported for the automobile, radio, lumber, clothing, cotton, silk, and shoe industries, while at woolen mills employment increased and in many other lines little change was reported."

Labor Protests Use of Guardsmen

Appeal to Roosevelt in Lumbermen's Strike at Tacoma, Wash.

By the Associated Press
The federal government became the focal point again Tuesday in the current labor disputes wave.

The Central Labor Council of Tacoma, Wash., sent President Roosevelt a vigorous protest against "lawless activities" of national guardsmen in reopening six mills closed by the sawmill and lumber workers' strike.

In New Orleans the federal government took over the collecting of garbage. City workers had announced a strike until past-due wages are paid in full.

An even simpler arrangement—this, too, is best for regular features and a not-too-long face—makes use of straight, bobbed hair. Have your barber leave the top and the part that grows back from the forehead quite long, cutting the rest (over ears) across the back of the neck) very short. Comb the front section straight backward.

Long hair can be worn unwaved, too. You can sleek it back, rolling the long ends into a rather flat bun high on the back of the head, or, if you like, part it in the center from forehead to nape of the neck, arranging two ellipses, one over each ear. Of course, in spite of the fact that you have planned a plain coiffure that you can arrange yourself, you ought to try to keep your hair from getting wet when you swim. Bathing caps alone certainly won't keep out water, but a good cap, plus a band of chamomile, often will. Pile your hair into a topknot, then wrap the strip of chamomile around your head, pinning it securely at the back. Put a tight cap on over it.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElfitt © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATHARINE STOLYKURST, 20 and beautiful, allows her emotions to rule when she marries MICHAEL HEATHERTON, young riding instructor who comes into a title and fortune. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is snobbish.

The night following his marriage Michael is injured in a traffic accident and when he regains consciousness his memory is impaired. He forgets the marriage. Katharine, heart-broken, believes he has deserted her. She goes to New Mexico with a friend, starting secret annulment proceedings meantime.

SALLY MOON, who has snatched Michael into a sort of engagement, unaware of his marriage to Katharine, makes plans for a wedding. During a rehearsal of the ceremony Michael's memory returns. He sets off immediately for New Mexico, arriving at the inn where Katharine has been staying. He finds she is away on a motor trip with new friends, the MILLARDS.

Meanwhile Katharine, wandering off for an early morning walk, becomes lost in the desert.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

ZOE stared at Clarence. The elderly colored man shifted his gaze easily. "I thought to myself," he said, "that 'fore I go back to Hartford I better take this to Miss Zoe. She'll know what to do with it. Seems like I tried to do the best I could, takin' it out of the drawer when that Miss Moon was lookin' over where."

Zoe interrupted. "You say you found it—when?" She had an official-looking paper in her hand. "Found it after Miss Michael done took sick. Thought he wouldn't want to see it. She was tearin' the place up, tearin' the whole self-same house to pieces."

Zoe, shaken by the revelation, concealed her amazement. "Thank you for bringing it to me, Clarence. You did right."

"Well, I didn't get back 'fore Miss Michael left. I was a-goin' to write him, but seems like I never got 'round to it. So I know you was Miss Katharine's friend. Man's the time when I worked for Miss Willetts I give both of you a ride on the pony. Seems like you'd know what to do, now I'm goin' back to my sister's to stay."

"Thank you, Clarence," Zoe reached for her purse and folded a bill into his hand. "Now there ain't no need for that." But his fingers closed over it. He went shambling away.

So that was Katharine's secret! Zoe glanced at the date on the marriage license. Weeks before Katharine had married Michael Heatheron!

And Sally Moon, to whom Michael had been engaged, was leaving for Paris on the morrow. Zoe, who knew a few of the people to whom Sally had sent invitations to the wedding, also had heard of their hasty cancellation. The bridegroom had been ill . . .

Wedding unavoidably postponed. That was the way the story went. And all the time, Zoe mused, this paper had been safely reposing in old Clarence's pocket.

Was Michael Heatheron the villain these circumstances painted him? Zoe trembled for Katharine. No wonder the girl had dropped, turned pale and wan. This was her secret.

ZOE went back into the house, unaccountably depressed. If Katharine had not managed her affairs better than this, what could one expect of the world at large?

"What a muddle!" Zoe sighed, leaning her head pensively on her hand.

She had seen John Kaye that morning. He had come out for a Saturday morning of golf. She had asked him to tea this afternoon, and he was coming. Zoe had felt a little flutter of pleasure at the thought, in spite of the fact that she had sworn never to let any man trouble the surface of her mind again. She felt whole—new again—since her summer madness.

She looked back on that time feeling older and wiser. It was a bad time to have got through. She thanked God with all her heart that she had got through it. There were other things in life besides love. She was going to do social service work this winter. Her mother, who had hitherto opposed this aim, was now perfectly willing to concur with any plans Zoe might make. So the Parkers would take a city apartment, and Zoe would have classes at a settlement or some such place, she told herself.

She was reading on the terrace at 4 when Gerda announced Dr. Kaye. He looked browner, more vital in his country tweeds. "Read the book I sent?"

"I started it," Zoe smiled. "It's grand. Some of it's hard going, but I feel so noble getting through it."

"Do you good," He grinned at her. There was something boyishly attractive about him today. Gerda brought tea. "Let's have it on the terrace, Doctor. Shall we?"

"Great. This sun won't last for ever."

She poured the thin amber stream into the delicate cups. "Glad you don't think tea is sissy."

"If No, I like it. And a year in London, you know, and learned to there. In Germany, of course, coffee was the thing . . ."

It was a pleasantly domestic interval. The yellow leaves drifting around them; the warm cobalt in the distance; the warmth of afternoon sun on their backs.

ZOE, burdened with Katharine's secret, longed to share it with someone wiser than herself, but did not quite dare. Besides the simplest, the most intelligent course would simply be to slip the certificate into an envelope and send it to Katharine with a brief note explaining how it got into Zoe's possession.

"I had a letter today," said the man, doubling a thin slice of bread and butter and eating it with evident relish. "Katharine's liking the place."

"I know it. She dropped me a note the third day she'd been there. It sounds marvelous."

"I was worried about her," John Kaye confessed, holding out his cup to be refilled. "She'd lost weight. —wasn't her usual energetic self."

Zoe's heart began to beat faster. This man was extraordinarily keen. Would she be able to keep silent—she who had always been such a blabber?

She began to chatter about nothing at all. The tennis finals, and the last dance of the season at Wilmackton, and whether Denny Raeburn's yacht would win the race. John listened, watching lazily the play of sunlight and shadow on the animated face. Zoe had taken on a new prettiness since wild outburst of despair, ending in her tussle with death. She was, John Kaye reflected, a delightful companion. Pity she'd fastened her affections on that rotter. Almost any man might consider himself lucky to have the love of a girl like Zoe. She was lovely to look at, intelligent, womanly (in the old-fashioned sense, in spite of her modern setting). Any man but himself, that it. His affections were placed elsewhere . . .

"You're not listening," the girl pointed. "I can tell."

"But I am," he protested, smiling. "You said Gracia Melvaine were green and was asking for me."

"Smart boy!" Zoe applauded. "You think your own thoughts and listen at the same time. It's like patting your head and rubbing your tummy—the trick we used to try when we were children."

"Something like that!" He laughed with deep enjoyment.

Zoe could feel the paper Clarence had given her crackling in the pocket of her sweater. She wished she had got rid of the incriminating evidence at once.

HER little Scottish terrier, Jack, came wandering in from the garden and sniffed in friendly fashion at the table holding the tea tray. Dr. Kaye rubbed the dog's ears, and Zoe told Jack sternly to keep away from the cakes.

"I met a friend of yours at lunch the other day," the man said lazily. In the silence. "Young Corliss. Said he'd come back on the boat with you in June."

Zoe said, "We had fun. Mother liked him."

"He's a very handsome chap."

"Very," Zoe said with polite interest. The Princeton youth with his perfect clothes and his big motor cars might have meant a thrilling interlude to her a year ago. Now—well, she just didn't seem to care.

Jack created a diversion at the moment by rising on his hind legs rather in the manner of an offended tabby, and growling deep in his throat.

A shepherd dog was bounding over Mrs. Parker's delphinium beds, casually planting his enormous feet all over the carefully-tended plant roots. Zoe said disgustedly, "That's Gracia's. She must be somewhere about. Now Jack's in it. Come back, come back, boy, do you hear me?"

She made a flying leap for him. Dr. Kaye at her heels.

"He'll kill him—Prince will kill Jack!" Zoe went on. "He nearly tore him to bits last year. I told Gracia not to let him come in here, except on leash."

Frantically she sought to part the two dogs. Gracia, very elegant in a walking costume of the sports, was an impersonation of the sporting woman at her most brilliant moment, strolled into sight.

Zoe had a willow switch which was proving quite ineffectual. Finally Dr. Kaye managed to grip Jack's collar and drag him away. Zoe, almost sobbing, received the battered little terrier into her arms.

"You naughty puppy! You deserve to be whipped. Why don't you obey me—!"

John Kaye, following her, picked up the folded paper she had dropped.

Mussolini Plans to Take Ethiopia

Dictator Holds Firm in Demand Protectorate Be Established

Copyright Associated Press
ROME, Italy.—Benito Mussolini, it is said Monday night, apparently intends to demand establishment of an Italian protectorate over Ethiopia and the African kingdom's expulsion from the League of Nations, regardless of Great Britain's stand.

This position emerged from the first day of conversations between Capt. Anthony Eden, England's traveling diplomat, and Mussolini, although it was said the Ethiopian question was not brought up.

Informed quarters said Mussolini was determined to stand fast for a "complete solution" of his quarrel with Ethiopia, the "solution" meaning a protectorate, backed by military occupation and Ethiopia's expulsion from Geneva.

The first day of conversations closed with the Anglo-German naval treaty and the air pact questions discussed. Italian sources said Mussolini rejected Eden's explanation of the accord with the Reich.

Destiny

None knows the purpose or the plan. If it were in the power of man To read his destiny aright, And settle it by force, he might, O'erwhelmed by stronger ranks, despair, Bewailing burdens he must bear. But strength and wisdom hand in hand Not always join to take command. Nor is it possible to guess Precisely failure and success. What now seems good to look upon May spell disaster later on. This is the tale of every man: To serve the truth as best he can; To know life's blend of smiles and tears And wait the judgment of the years. And, though, in darkness he may grope, Never to part from faith or hope. This is man's glory—he may be Outnumbered twice ten times, yet he, Clinging to truth may work and wait And ultimately join the great And in God's own good time may win From failure victory's shining crest.—Selected.

Joan Blondell in New Saenger Film

"Traveling Saleslady"
Showing Wednesday
on Local Screen

"Traveling Saleslady," one of the freshest and liveliest comedies of the season, is showing Wednesday only at the Saenger, with Joan Blondell heading the all star cast.

Women were especially delighted with the picture, for it shows how a young girl with initiative and personality gets the better of her male rivals in the business world.

The story is delightfully breezy and whimsical, with hilarious situations and a most unusual climax. The dialogue is snappy and the action swift moving from start to finish.

Joan Blondell, in the title role, is as slim and beautiful and as full of pep and ginger as ever. This is the first picture in which she has appeared since she quit the screen a few months ago to become the mother of a bouncing baby boy. Her acting is snappy and full of nerve and she handles every situation with skill and artistry.

William Gargan plays opposite Miss Blondell in the leading masculine role as the star salesman of a rival concern whom she works at every turn.

The story is not without its romances and share of love tangles, in addition to its comedy, for Glenda Farrell appears on the scene as the jealous rival of Miss Blondell for the affections of the handsome Gargan. She is the proprietress of a chain of drug stores and gives her business to Gargan, but takes it away when she finds that romance is developing between Gargan and Miss Blondell.

F. D. Pushes Tax

will expire automatically.

This decision was reached in the face of open resentment among some house members, rising opposition in the senate and the threat of a filibuster by Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri.

Opponents of haste, including several who like Clark are for the proposed rates, stirred up a battle in the committee meeting late Tuesday, which culminated in a vote to proceed. Harrison said this ballot later was stricken from the record.

Because many legacies consist of real property, stocks, bonds and the like, rather than of cash, this was considered to present one of the most difficult questions, Harrison said he would suggest a 12-year period in which the legatee could liquidate a sufficient portion of his legacy to meet the tax.

Democratic members of the house ways and means committee determined to do nothing to the nuisance tax resolution. Under the constitution revenue legislation originates in their branch of congress.

Despite a plea by Senator Byrns to approve a resolution extending the nuisance taxes 30 to 90 days—and thereby giving the senate more time to act—the house committee rejected the proposal, at least for the time being.

Liberty League
In a statement issued by the American Liberty League, Representative Wadsworth, Republican, New York, loosed a blast against the president's program.

"Mr. Roosevelt's amazing proposal that congress enact his fantastic 'share he wealth' tax program within a five-day period," said Wadsworth, "is a convincing demonstration of the complete irresponsibility of the present administration. It helps to supply the answer to those who ask why the United States is lagging far behind the rest of the world in its progress toward economic recovery."

"In no sense can this be considered a revenue-raising program. Even if it reduced funds far in excess of anything which may be expected, it would not make any impression upon the staggering deficits which this administration has been so blithely piling up for future generations to pay."

Sales Tax Will

under supervision of the government, then the sales tax would apply," the opinion said.

"This would be the case on PWA funds which are both a loan and a grant to political subdivisions. It would further apply to funds furnished the state Highway Commission for construction. Clearly, it would further apply to loans made by the HOLC to home owners, such loans to be repaid by the home owner direct to the HOLC."

"In my opinion, the true criterion

Geologist Surveys North End County

Township Covers $100 Requested for Extension Service Folk

E. B. Palmer of New York City, geologist for the Prairie Mound Oil Company, which is blocking acreage for a test well in the Washington-Columbus section, has been in the Washington locality for the past two weeks making a geological survey of the section involved in the proposed block.

No statement as to oil or gas possibilities has been forthcoming yet from the geologist, who will probably be another week in making his survey, states D. J. Johnston, of the company, in charge of blocking.

"The oil company has hopes that the geologist will make a favorable report as to the section, as we are anxious to drill a test well in this territory," states Mr. Johnston. "It takes some time for a geologist to accurately work out all the structural conditions that are evident, and we believe when Mr. Palmer completes his work that the territory north of Washington and Columbus will have been thoroughly geologized."

should be as to whether the property is bought directly by the federal agency, paid for by the federal agency, for the use and benefit of the federal agency; if the property is so bought, then it is exempt from our state sales tax.

"On the matter of sales by the state, counties or cities the sales tax would clearly apply. Our tax is a tax on the consumer and not on the retailer, and whether a municipality owns, operates and sells electricity and water, the sales tax would apply. Further, if a federal agency makes sales to a consumer, again the sales tax would apply."

Ozan Exceeds Its Quota on Agents

E. B. Palmer Inspecting
Washington Area for Proposed Oil Test

Ozan township passed her quota of $100.00 asked for in the drive to obtain funds with which to pay a part of the county agent's and the home demonstration agent's salaries for the remainder of the year, it is announced by Lee Holt, who had charge of the Ozan drive. Washington, Ozan, and the whole of Ozan township were asked to raise $100.00. Half of the amount was to have been raised in Washington and the other at Ozan.

Mr. Holt, however, raised considerably more than Washington's share, reaching the sum of $96.00, or almost all that was asked for the entire township. This figure includes some donations from county officers and employees at the court house, who are not residents, however.

The New Deal

tion, after defining the court's jurisdiction and original jurisdiction says: "In all the other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and to fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the congress shall make."

Customary failure of congress to make exceptions is a matter of usage, rather than obedience to a constitutional prerogative of the court.

What Knives Behind Screen

Smart readers will not need to be told that disclaimers by Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Ickes that each harbors the desire to cut the other's throat are so much applause for the benefit of Papa Roosevelt, who deprecates public fights among his boys and girls. You ought to hear Harry and Harold discuss each other in private!

In the contest for power in the big work-relief program, Ickes has seen-sawed up and down and lately it has been made to appear that he was up on top again. But, although Ickes has an enviable reputation for bouncing back into power and favor with the White House, this appearance may be illusory.

He seems to have the $250,000,000 approved for slum clearance and low cost housing firmly tacked down, after a period of doubt as to whether he would get even that.

But his belief that he will also have the spending of the $900,000,000 scheduled for non-federal projects of a PWA nature may be too optimistic.

Hopkins on Top

Cities and states, already heavily burdened with debt, seem to be in no hurry to borrow 55 per cent of local project costs from Ickes when they may be able to get 100 per cent grants later from Hopkins.

Ickes had about $100,000,000 in applications for projects ready, but some of those applications have been withdrawn, while applicants wait to see what their chances are with Hopkins' Work Progress Division.

Ickes probably will be lucky if he gets a third of $900,000,000.

Hopkins sits on top. He has the job of putting 3,500,000 people to work, of certifying them from his relief rolls, of getting projects under way and passing on their employment possibilities before approval of the Ickes board can become final.

He also has the job of bossing the investigative staff for the entire work-relief setup, and of fixing labor rates.

Which doesn't seem to leave much power for Mr. Ickes. But you never can tell.

SO THEY SAY

I believe that if there is to be any enduring peace, international measures must be taken to improve condition of the masses.—Kemal Ataturk, president of Turkey.

We are not going to let Huey Long continue to use the Senate as a medium for making himself the Fascist dictator of America.—Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Washington.

The stage will stay dead because we are raising a generation of young people who don't even know what the legitimate theater is.—George Jessel, famed actor.

There never has been nor never will be freedom when powers of government are lodged in a man or in a group of men.—Herbert Hoover.

The wisdom and strength of the Constitution explain our persistence as a going concern in a world where almost all other democracies have failed.—Bainbridge Colby, one-time secretary of state.

Roosevelt Fights TVA Compromise

Will Not Accept Amendments on Government Power Project

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An indirect White House blast at a compromise Tennessee Valley Authority bill Monday heralded a bitter house battle this week over Roosevelt power and utility policies.

Arthur E. Morgan, TVA chairman, left President Roosevelt's office with an assertion, interpreted as voicing the executive's view, that the TVA amendments approved by the house military committee last week would be "worse than nothing."

President Roosevelt was reported to have based his condemnation of the TVA compromise on three major grounds:

1. He objected to a provision that would force TVA not to sell power below production costs after January 1, 1937, because the measure does not define that cost.

2. He opposed a section that would forbid TVA construction of power lines substantially paralleling existing private lines because it might prevent selling of electricity to communities and thus threaten the agency's plans for development of the Tennessee basin.

3. He argued that private utilities would be damaged by keeping TVA's bond issuing power to $50,000,000. The senate-approved measure would have increased the total to $100,000,000 and permitted TVA to acquire private power facilities.

South Americans Probe Air Crash

14 Killed as Tri-Motored Airliners Collide While on Ground

Copyright Associated Press
MEDELLIN, Colombia, South America.—(AP)—A War Ministry commission came here Tuesday by airplane to investigate the crash of two airplanes Monday in which 14 persons were killed and 5 seriously injured.

The accident was a freak affair which occurred on the ground as two big tri-motored transport planes raced across the airport in simultaneous take offs while the crowd, assembled to bid farewell, screamed in horror.

Negro Joe Louis Knocks Out Giant

Detroit 21-Year-Old Brown Boy Finishes Career in Sixth Round

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK.—(AP)—The Brown bombshell from Detroit, Joe Louis, exploded with shocking violence in a prize ring just off second base Tuesday night.

He stunned Primo Carnera, monster man from Italy, into helplessness and possible oblivion in six rounds, and left an amazing crowd of close to 70,000 dazed and shellshocked in his wake.

Never once blinking eyes that were oval pools of black murder, never changing his expression, the 21-year-old negro maimed the massive Carnera with a volley of rights and lefts to the head in the first round, kept him dizzy for the next five, then blew him down three times in the sixth. Referee Arthur Donovan mercifully stopped the battering to give Louis a technical knockout two minutes and 32 seconds after the start of the sixth.

The size of the crowd, greatest since Max Schmeling won the heavyweight title from Jack Sharkey before 73,222 persons in this same ring on a foul in 1930, was almost as astonishing as the effortless exhibition of the brown boy who fought his first professional fight only a year ago.

Receipts were estimated by Promoter Mike Jacobs at close to $400,000 as the fight business, both financially and artistically, staged a great comeback from Jimmy Braddock's stolid heavy-weight title conquest of Max Baer less than two weeks ago before a crowd of 50,000 paying $200,000.

Louis, all that the west said he was as he knocked out 18 men in the 22 fights he has had as a professional, spotted the giant 64½ pounds and still had little trouble cutting him down as an expert woodman, with a two edged axe, would fell a monster oak in a forest.

Shuffling forward, his face white in action as boyish and unmoved as when he sat calmly waiting the starting bell, Louis, the 196-pounder, lashed out suddenly near the start of the first round with a left hook that nearly tore away the lower half of Carnera's head. The giant, all waving arms and stumbling legs when he is hurt, sought desperately to grab the youngster, lean on him, batter him in the clinches.

Joe just moved away, and then moved back, to fling a long right into Primo's mouth that tore the lips, and started blood flowing, then to nail him again with a right that sent ripples of startled reactions from muscles all over Carnera's monstrous, bulgy, thewed, 260½ pound frame.

Carnera, circus strong man only half a dozen years ago, trudging Italian hills with bags wound around his feet for shoes, was maimed again, just as he was maimed in the first round as another puncher, Max Baer, took his heavy-weight title away a year ago. There was look of horror in his eyes as Louis, never winking, never moving so much as a muscle of his face, effortlessly, crowded him to the ropes in the second round and slugged his body with both hands. Primo's seconds were screaming for him to "stay in close," to hug the little brown destroyer, to smother him in his great arms, rough him around, batter his body.

It was good advice, but for Primo it was like trying to smother an exploding hand grenade with his torso.

Wreck Confession Promptly Denied

Officers Puzzled as 16-Year-Old Boy Retracts Guilty Statement

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Deputy sheriffs announced Wednesday that David Barnes, 16, Little Rock, had confessed he and a companion placed spikes on the Missouri Pacific right-of-way which wrecked a fast freight Sunday.

Officers Tuesday night reported the youth had admitted causing the derailment, but said he later denied responsibility.

Officers indicated they would probably release three other Little Rock youths held in connection with the investigation.

Confesses, Then Denies
LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Deputy sheriffs were baffled Tuesday night by a "confession," almost immediately retracted, by a 16-year-old boy, that he derailed the fast Missouri Pacific freight train near the County hospital Sunday afternoon "to get some oranges."

The fantastic story was told, according to Deputies, Raper, Conner and Townes, by David Barnes, one of four arrested Monday night for questioning in connection with the wreck, which cost three lives, injured several other persons and resulted in a property loss of $75,000.

The boy told a seemingly straightforward story, the officers said, after he had been questioned by them. He told of laying two spikes on the outer rail of the curve at the hospital, and implicated two companions.

The officers said he described the manner in which the spikes were laid, lengthwise on the rail with the point toward the approaching train. He told of running away through the woods after the locomotive was derailed and 27 cars piled in a heap and burst into flames. They returned a short time later, but did not stay long, according to the account reported by the deputies.

It was when the officers brought in one of the boys named by young Barnes as an accomplice that his story broke down. The second suspect, who lives near Greer Springs, about three miles from the scene of the wreck, protested his innocence all the way to the county jail and insisted he knew nothing of it until 7 Sunday night.

When the officers confronted Barnes with the youth he had named, Barnes shook his head when asked to identify him, the deputies said. They took Barnes into another room and again asked him what part the newcomer had played in the wrecking of the train.

Miss Collins was accompanied home by her sister Emma Jane Collins, who will spend her vacation here with relatives.

Emma Jane was chosen as one of the representatives in the bathing beauty contest, one of the main events during the celebration and at which the Light Crust Doughboys furnished music. Approximately 25,000 people attended the ceremonies.

"Oh, he wasn't in it," Barnes was quoted as saying. And I wasn't there, either. I just told you a lie this afternoon."

State Work Share to Be 50 Million

Most of It Will Be Spent in Arkansas in Next 12 Months

LITTLE ROCK.—Arkansas's share of the $4,000,000 work relief fund appropriated by congress probably will be around $50,000,000, most of which will be expended in one year by the new Works Progress Administration, according to tentative plans for allotment of the funds.

The $4,000,000 fund is supposed to put 3,500,000 unemployed persons back to work at security wages and in occupations which they have previously followed. Thus, there will be an average of $800 to create a job for each unemployed person for a year.

The Arkansas FERA will have approximately 60,000 unemployed heads of families on its relief rolls after 10,000 families participating in the Rural Rehabilitation program are turned over to the Resettlement Administration Monday.

Not all of the $800 per person—Arkansas's per capita allotment is likely to be somewhat lower than this average—will go to the individual, it was pointed out Tuesday. Out of it must come necessary materials for the jobs created and administrative costs.

Because the aim of the new program is to give as much as possible of the money available to the relief clients employed on the projects, Administrator W. R. Dyess warned Tuesday that sponsors of proposed projects under the WFA will receive scant consideration unless they are in a position to supply the necessary materials.

Section 9 of the first circular issued by the Works Progress Administration provides:

"The sponsoring governmental agency is expected to contribute equipment, materials, and services to the maximum amount possible. The priority of the project will depend in part on the amount of such contributions and the extent to which they increase the proportion of labor cost to the total federal funds required for the project."

The WPA in Arkansas will adhere

The Trust Fund - - - - and How It Works

When the late R. J. Reynolds, millionaire tobacco man died in 1918, his estate was left in a Trust Fund to be divided among his widow and four children. The value of the Trust Fund in 1918 was slightly in excess of one and three-quarters millions. By 1934 it had expanded to 25 millions.

Mr. Reynolds, during life was a successful business man. His Trust Fund precluded the possibility of inept management of his property after death. He demonstrated his ability to build wealth, but the management and conservation of his funds was wisely left to experts who took the necessary precaution, and made it their business to know how to manage money.

Many people are capable producers during their productive years. Yet few are capable money managers, which is, within itself a profession. A Trust Fund serves this field, for the building of wealth takes time and can best be undertaken through systematic accumulation.

Also a Trust Fund may be employed as a means of transporting the child through college years.

The Trust Fund, formerly an instrument for the wealthy is now available to the person of moderate income.

FROM the driver's point of view, 8 cylinders make the ideal engine for a car. They give responsiveness, smoothness, quietness. Their reserve power puts the driver in closer command of his car—and his car in more instant command of its road.

And in the V-type 8-cylinder engine, as Ford makes it, you get this sparkling performance at literally 4-cylinder cost. The Ford V-8 you buy today costs less to own than any car Ford ever built!

Its initial cost is at rock-bottom, and includes many "extras," such as safety glass all around, big 6.00 x 16 inch air-balloon tires, built-in luggage space.

Operating costs have also been pared this year—

not only by the Ford V-8 engine's sparing use of gas and oil, but by other new improvements which have cut down brake, clutch, and tire wear. Adjustments are few on a Ford V-8, and what there are cost little. Spare parts, when needed, are always at hand, always low-priced.

And over and above the money you save on a Ford V-8—there's always the extra performance you get. Go try it yourself. There's a Ford dealer near you—go see him today. Get into this newest Ford V-8. Take command, yourself, of its fleet, flexible 85 horsepower. Let a Ford V-8 tell you what it has already told to a record number of eager buyers.
